Real Culprit in Inflation Is Government

Some observers blame labor costs for our continuing inflation, others lay the blame on management's profits—but the biggest culprit isn't either of these.

The real villain, as some of us have been pointing out for years, is the federal government—with its multiple bureaus, endless lines of employees, and automatic pay increases.

It is this last-named—automatic pay rises—that Rep. Wilbur Mills (D.-Ark.), chairman of the House Ways & Means Committee, lambasts as government's greatest disservice to our country.

In short, individual workers get automatic pay increases from year to year simply because they are working for the government—a preferred status that is denied those who are working for taxpaying outfits.

How serious this question is you may judge from a paragraph in the Wall Street Journal of June 7:

Despite cuts in recent years of more than a million military jobs and over 100,000 civilian slots, federal employee salaries and benefits are expected to surpass $59 billion in the fiscal year beginning July 1, the Tax Foundation says. That's more than double the 1964 figure of $28.9 billion.

Award plan for taxpayers being studied by Treasury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional prodding, the Treasury is studying a plan to reward taxpayers who agree to lend the government the extra-large refunds they expect to get next year from income-tax withholding.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee approved Monday $45.7 million in appropriations for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Arkansas.

The committee approved the proposals, which were made by the Nixon Administration, without change.

Flag furlled, unit prepares to leave

BIEN HOA, Vietnam (AP) — In a brief ceremony without speeches, the last American combat unit in South Vietnam furlled its colors today and prepared for the trip home.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, and Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the 3rd Military Region, headed the audience at the farewell for the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division's 3rd Brigade.

Brig. Gen. James F. Hamlet, the brigade's commander, was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and two medals from the Vietnamese.

The brigade remained behind last year when the division's other two brigades and the division headquarters left the war zone.

Operating well above normal brigade strength of 5,000 men, the unit patrolled areas in Bien Hoa, Long Khanh and Binh Tuy provinces to the east and north-east of Saigon.

A residual force of some 2,000 troops is to remain behind to guard the big Bien Hoa Air Base and other U.S. installations in the area.

Senate leaders push for OK on $3 billion bill

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leaders pushed for passage today of a $2.9-billion child-development bill revised in an effort to meet President Nixon's objections to legislation he vetoed last year.

Debate on the measure opened Monday, but votes on amendments were put over until today.

The bill would provide funding for the largest federal day-care program in history plus many other services needed by families when the mother works.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., chief sponsor, declared that more than ever the bill is a family-strengthening measure with the changes made in it since the 1971 veto.

He stressed it is totally voluntary, as was last year's version, and that it provides a wide range of services in addition to day care.

"These services are crucial to the support of the family at a time when millions of mothers are working," he said.

The Minnesotaan said one-third of the mothers with preschool children, about 4.5 million women, now work at full-or part-time jobs.

"As a result," he said, "there are over 5 million preschool children who need full-or part-time day-care services while their mothers are away from home."

"Yet, there are less than 700,000 spaces in licensed day-care programs to serve them."

Nixon said in vetoing the 1971 bill that it would commit "the vast moral authority of the national government to the side of communal approaches to child-rearing over against the family-centered approach."

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn.,

echoing that view about the new bill, told the Senate Monday that the new version would "create incentives for families to deposit a baby each day on the door steps of an institution."

The bill would provide free day care for children of poverty-level families. Those slightly above that level would have to pay small fees. Well-off families also could use the centers but would have to pay the full cost.

The care would be much more than purely custodial. It would include nutritional, educational, medical and social services.

George-Hubert rivalry is 'feud'

NEW YORK (AP) — The political rivalry between Democratic hopefuls George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey has taken on feud-like proportions with a new exchange of words over McGovern's position on several issues.

The latest step was taken by South Dakota Sen. McGovern early today when he issued a statement charging Humphrey with "undermining his (Humphrey's) reputation and jeopardizing his party by the kind of misleading statements he has been making about my positions."

"He knows that I am a reasonable man," Democratic presidential frontrunner McGovern said in a statement released at 1:15 a.m. "Yet he persists in twisting my positions to serve his own desperate purposes."

"A few years ago I watched Sen. Humphrey undercut his credibility by exuberant efforts to sell the American people on the Vietnam war. He condemned those of us who warned against the Vietnam tragedy. Now he seems bent upon further political self-destruction in a frantic effort to mislead the voters about the domestic issues of 1972."

Humphrey, in a news conference Monday in Washington, had said, "I'm asking here today that those (voters in today's New York Presidential primary) who have doubts about the McGovern position cast their votes for the uncommitted delegates or the independent delegates."

Humphrey also noted efforts in some state Democratic party organizations to move for a liberalized 1972 party platform that would include legalization of marijuana and abortion.

Hospital expansion planned

The Board of Directors of the Hempstead County Memorial Hospital voted recently to construct an addition to the existing X-ray and laboratory wing of the hospital.

The addition, to which approximately 1,650 square feet of floor space, is "a necessity of the utmost importance due to the increase in the growth of the community and the resulting heavier load on the physicians and the hospital," according to Raymond Byers, chairman of the board.

In the expansion, Byers said, a complete laboratory will be housed and equipped. Some of the proposed new equipment includes an automated chemistry machine that performs from 10 to 17 blood tests on a single patient sample. The "biochemical profile" will enable physicians to make more rapid diagnoses, he said. The hospital also announced the recent purchase of a Profex X-ray machine. Byers said that many new medical procedures—tomography, manography and vascular studies—may not be done at the hospital. The control panel of the new X-ray machine has a built-in computer added as a safety feature.

Byers said: "This expansion program and purchase of several costly pieces of equipment is a much needed step. We who are charged with the operations of the hospital want to keep abreast with the ever-changing technology in the medical field and provide the facilities, equipment, and personnel to meet the medical needs of the community."

China shuts off Russia

'No port in a storm'

LONDON (AP) — China has closed its southern ports to Soviet ships loaded with war supplies for North Vietnam but is still allowing ships from other Communist countries to land supplies for Hanoi, authorities in touch with both Peking and Moscow reported today.

Peking's reason, according to informants putting out the Chinese line, is that the Soviets are unwilling to risk their new relationship with the United States by challenging President Nixon's mining of North Vietnam's ports.

Moscow's version, as told by diplomats from Soviet bloc countries, is that the Chinese are easing up on their support for the North Vietnamese in favor of a more flexible international policy.

The U.S. mining of North Vietnam's ports has been condemned by both Peking and Moscow as illegal interference with navigation on the high seas. Informants in touch with the Chinese say Peking considers that Moscow has the obligation to challenge the mining, and that failure to do so implies tacit acceptance.

The Chinese reportedly argue that the Soviet Union has the obligation to help Hanoi. This is cited as one of the factors that has led Moscow to help in the search for a political settlement of the Vietnam War lenge can only mean that its relationship with Washington is deemed to transcend its responsibility to Hanoi.

The informants say that as Peking sees it, the smaller East European countries lack the power to challenge the Americans, therefore their cargoes for Hanoi are being accepted in Chinese ports.

For their part, the Russians reportedly contend that Peking's attitude is consistent with other signs suggesting China is moving away from its obligation to help Hanoi. This is cited as one of the factors that has led Moscow to help in the search for a political settlement of the Vietnam War

13 dead in hurricane

By RICH OPPEL and TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writers

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Agnes has gasped her last over backwoods Georgia after a collision with the Florida Panhandle that left homes uprooted, roads awash and millions of dollars in damage.

Agnes, the first of the season's hurricanes, killed 13 persons, injured more than 100 and forced thousands of families from their homes as she rampaged north from Cuba.

Although an 80-mile-per-hour parent of ravaging tornadoes early Monday, the storm was reduced to a disorganized mass by midnight and was sweeping across South Georgia with 45 m.p.h. winds.

Once the storm had passed, residents along Florida's northwestern coast began picking their way through the soggy debris they had called home.

One 15-mile stretch bordering the Gulf of Mexico from Carabelle to Eastpoint, Fla., was lined with demolished homes. Parts of U. S. 90—including much of the causeway between Eastpoint and Apalachicola—were eaten away.

"I gave up counting how many houses were destroyed and just put 'most of them' on my report," said Red Cross volunteer Beth Henson.

Many beachfront houses were reduced to little more than rubble.

Herbert Chipman whose house was ruined, said, "The waters just came up and came in. I don't know how much of my house is left."

While Agnes was churning across the Gulf toward the Panhandle, a backlash slammed into the Tampa Bay area, inflicting $12 million damage on St. Petersburg and neighboring towns.

Flood waters more than 3 feet deep were reported in several neighborhoods in Pinellas County.

Electrical power and telephone service were interrupted during the day for more than 1,000 homes, and when the flood waters subsided, poisonous snakes, scorpions and spiders turned up in residential sections.

"I killed a 5-foot rattlesnake in my yard," one St. Petersburg man reported. "The guy next door killed a coral snake."

Four persons died Monday and several others disappeared when a tornado sliced through three Okeechobee mobile home parks "like a freight train," as one witness described it. About 40 injuries were reported.

Several other twisters ripped through Brevard County on the Atlantic Coast Monday, destroying scores of homes, damaging 60 light planes at Merritt Island Airport and peeling walls from several apartment houses.

Sixteen houses were lifted off their foundations and a $40,000 yacht vanished into the sky, according to reports from Alligator Point, a hook shaped peninsula in northwest Florida.

FATALLY STABBED

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP) — Ashley County officials said Sammy Lee Jackson, 42, was fatally stabbed with a pocket-knife at his home six miles west of Portland.

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The nation's only woman senator, 74-year-old Margaret Chase Smith, defeated a combination of youth and money to win Republican nomination for a fifth term.

Mrs. Smith will face Democrat William D. Hathaway, a popular four-term congressman who romped to a 10-1 victory over perennial candidate Jack L. Smith of Portland in the state primary election Monday.

With 602 of Maine's 629 precincts reported, Mrs. Smith had 71,107 votes to 34,527 for Robert

A.G. Monks, 38, a millionaire businessman. Hathaway received 54,601 votes to Jack Smith's 5,653.

Mrs. Smith, Maine's top vote-getter, maintained her usual low-key weekends-only campaign. She stressed her Senate seniority and its importance to the state, using the theme: "Don't swap a record for a promise."

Monks campaigned strenuously, picturing himself as a modern, dynamic leader who could inject new life into a sagging Maine Republican party.

Other staff members are Barbara Jackson, Betsy Griffin, Beth Gilbert, Karen Britt, Bill Moore, Steve Caldwell, Debra Robinson, Carla Delaney, Susan Reardon, Sandy Flowers, Debbie Gunter, Beckie Moore, and Benita Brown.

The staff was commended on its use of the theme: "How long 'til the bell?" The theme referred to the possibility, which became a reality, of an eight-months' school term. Photography, which is chiefly student produced, was rated from "superior" to "very good."

This was the first 9 1/2 x 12 inch yearbook published by Hope High School, according to Mrs. Turner.

Molasses Skillet Bread provides an old-fashioned, nutritious treat.

Nutritious Molasses Skillet Bread

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Bread making at home is a reward in itself. Very close to an old-fashioned taste and texture is a Molasses Skillet Bread with a honey glaze. Bake this in a cast iron skillet, cool and serve from skillet for a touch of nostalgia.

MOLASSES SKILLET BREAD

Bread:
1 cake compressed or 1 package dry yeast
1/4 cup lukewarm water
3/4 cup milk, scalded
1/4 cup sugar

1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup light molasses
3/4 to 3 3/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 egg, beaten
1 cup quick or old-fashioned oats, uncooked

Glaze:
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup butter or margarine

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt, butter and molasses; stir to dissolve butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour and egg. Add softened yeast and oats. Stir in enough additional flour to make soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted butter. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover; let rest 10 minutes. Turn out onto lightly floured board or canvas. Roll into a 23x6-inch rectangle. Cut in half lengthwise. Pinch lengthwise edges of each strip together to make two 23-inch ropes. Place one rope of dough around outside edge of a buttered 8-inch (measured across the bottom) cast iron skillet. Wind second rope into a coil in the center of the skillet. Pinch together the ends of the 2 ropes where they meet. Brush lightly with melted butter. Cover; let rise in warm place until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Beat together honey and butter until smooth. Brush half of honey glaze over bread.

Bake an additional 5 minutes. Brush with remaining glaze. Cool 10 minutes and serve warm. Makes one loaf.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Perpetual People Puzzle," ABC's Monday night special, was a grab-bag of entertainment—some songs, a dance number, a little satire, some comedy monologues, a sports-caster trying to be a comedian at his own expense, and right in the middle of all the action, a very moving dramatic vignette.

The hour program had all the earmarks of a pilot for a series. In structure, it was a cross between Public Broadcasting's "Great American Dream Machine" and NBC's "Laugh-In."

Singer-dancer Gwen Verdon opened the show with "Chicago" sung and danced in an airline terminal at Kennedy Airport in New York as some passengers stared wide-eyed. Miss Verdon and her fellow dancers wound up riding slowly around the big metal wheel from which passengers grab their luggage.

There was Richie Haven and his musical group with a couple of sad songs, and Jack Cassidy camping through a broad satire on TV's situation comedies.

Cutting in from start to finish was ABC's man about sports, Howard Cosell, reporting on a "Commuter 500" race. This was three working people—a girl on a motorcycle, a man on a train and a man in a car—supposedly racing to get to the office first. Cosell's play-by-play and the race were supposed to be funny, and maybe they were for viewers who are Cosell fans.

And the drama: James Earl Jones played a freshly released ex-convict riding a bus back home and worrying about whether his wife wants him back. Three sympathetic fellow passengers bring him to the point of telling how, if she wants him back, there will be a yellow handkerchief tied to a tree near the bus stop.

It built nicely to a climax—a tree festooned with yellow banners.

A lot of the show didn't work at all, other portions seemed forced and self-conscious, but all through it were rewarding moments.

Best of all, it was an effort to do something in the variety form that has not been copied all over the place.

Dan Blocker's recent death has left a big hole in the basic structure of NBC's "Bonanza." David Canary was brought back to the series almost immediately and Tim Matheson, once in "The Virginian" cast, will be introduced as a regular in the fourth or fifth episode of the fall season. He will play Griff King, an ex-convict brought to the ranch by Ben Cartwright. Young Mitch Vogel will continue as a regular for a third season.

But the Cartwright clan that began with four is down to two: Lorne Greene and Michael Landon.

Habit is a powerful thing. Since I write the final drafts of "Generation Rap," I've been using "Dear" in salutations both to and from correspondents for 14 years, the words springs from my machine automatically. Will try to change, but don't expect a totally "dearless" column—unless all out letters come to us that way.—HELEN N. "D." P.

Not quite half our letters still begin with "Dear...." Maybe your note will help change that.

I kinda think plain "John:" or "Mary:" sounds more personal and less corny. And it's pretty ridiculous when we get, "Dear Helen and Sue: Drop Dead!" — MAXINE. Which does she mean?—SUE

SUE AND HELEN: I need some motherly and sisterly advice since I have neither and I can't talk to my Dad or a priest.

You see, every time a guy wants to meet me, I get frightened, because I know that the minute we're alone he'll be all over me, so close that I can't breathe.

Maybe you think I meet the wrong kind of guy. Not true. They come from different backgrounds, religions, etc., but they all have one characteristic—they all "try."

I'm not afraid of every man, just guys who want to date me, and a few I baby-sat for, who made passes at me while driving me home. Even though my budget couldn't stand it, I refused to work for their families again.

I'm 16, not bad looking, am on the honor roll, and I don't lead boys on. So why do they act this way?—ANN

If ALL guys try the minute you're alone, you're giving the wrong signals. Maybe your suspicions come across as "expectations." Check out YOUR actions and you may not need to watch out so much for theirs.—SUE

DEAR ANN: Those passes by older men: perhaps they frightened you so much that you read "sex" into every little action. If not, then you're somehow asking for it, and you should practice up on friendly conversation. It's a great cooler.—HELEN

MR. AND MRS. DARRELL SMITH

Couple pledge vows

Miss Linda Tarpley, daughter of Lloyd Tarpley of Spring Hill became the bride of Darrell Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Smith of El Cerrito, California at 6:00 p.m. June 9, 1972 in the home of the bride's parents.

Bro. Carl Diffie performed the double ring ceremony standing before baskets of white gladioli. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white knit floor length wedding dress trimmed in lace. Her bouquet was white carnations which she carried atop a white Bible. Miss Kay Tarpley, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her dress was of pink knit and she wore a corsage of white carnations. Larry Bradford served as best man.

The reception was held at the home immediately following the ceremony. The centerpiece on the serving table was an arrangement of yellow roses. After the couple cut the traditional wedding cake, Mrs. Vivian Powell and Miss Luci Thornton served cake, frosted orange punch, nuts and mints to the 21 in attendance.

For travel the bride wore a blue and white knit pantsuit. The couple is at home in Spring Hill. Mr. Smith is employed by Hope Eggland and Mrs. Smith is employed by Pioneer Printers.

ELLINGTON FESTIVAL

MADISON Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin has scheduled a Duke Ellington Festival from July 17 through 21.

The Ellington Band will give five concerts — three different concerts — a sacred concert and one in a large area where admission will be either free or very low.

There will be workshops with musicians from the Ellington Band and two master classes taught by Duke Ellington.

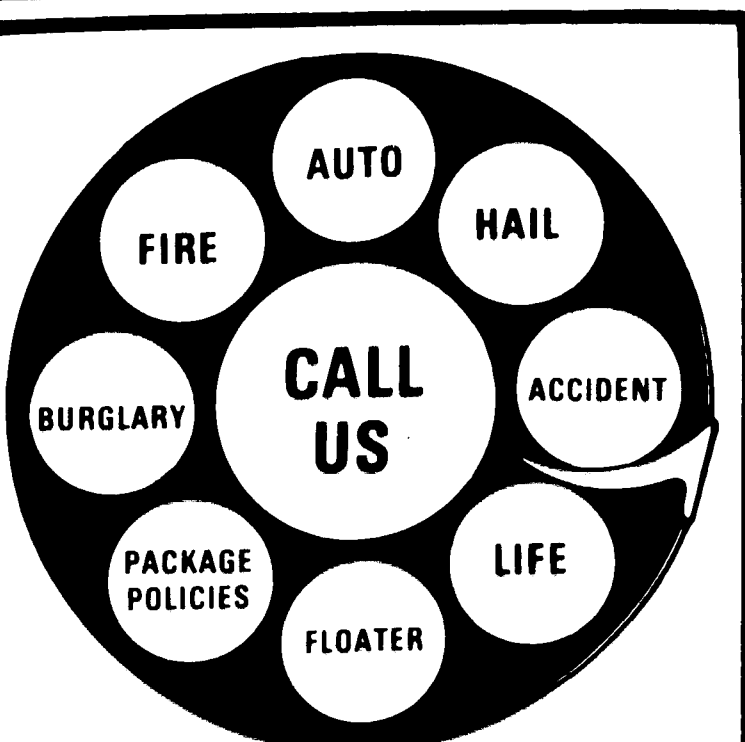

Mrs. Saunders is honored with shower

A recent bride, Mrs. Buddie Saunders, nee Miss Scooter Bryant, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower on June 15 in the home of Mrs. Thomas Walker with Miss Sharan Rateliff and Miss Cheryl Formby, co-hostesses.

For the informal entertainment, the honoree wore an orange sports ensemble. Summer flowers were seen in the home. A wedding cake topped with the traditional bride and groom had been decorated by Mrs. Charles E. Stone.

Cake was served with punch to 20 guests, who brought the bride a number of pretty and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders are leaving this week to make their home in California.

Trevino will sponsor women's pro tourney

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Lee Trevino is planning on sponsoring a women's pro tournament in the El Paso area next fall.

"I'm involved in this development project, you see," Trevino said. "We're building a golf course. And we want to open it up with a tournament."

"What I want to do is get a good women's tournament. You know, $30,000 or $35,000 or something like that. It would cost too much to put on a men's tournament but we could swing one for the ladies without too much trouble."

"I'm going to try to set it up so they get the first class treatment—a good rate on hotel rooms, transportation, all that sort of thing.

"I don't know what it's going to be called, whether my name will be on it or not, but we're going to do it."

Jack Nicklaus' victory in the U.S. Open was a boon to the airlines business. At least two dozen sports writers—who hadn't planned to go previously—started scurrying for reservations to Edinburgh, Scotland when Nicklaus made the British Open the third leg on his hopes of a professional Grand Slam this season.

Mason Rudolph's comment after taking a wind-blown 80 in the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach: "This course is built around my game. 'Way around it. They don't touch at any point."

Nicklaus has announced that he will not play again until the British Open. Should he win there, the chances are good that he won't play again until the PGA National championship, three weeks later.

That would put Arnold Palmer, who has paired with Jack to win the national team championship the last two years, looking for a new partner.

The team championship is scheduled on Palmer's home course in Ligonier, Pa., the week before the PGA tournament.

You've seen the television commercial where Lee Trevino walks under a multi-colored light and perches on the edge of a pool table while he makes his spiel.

The commercial was taped in his home.

"I got the pool table in just so friends could enjoy it when they come by," he said. "I don't play much myself. Most of the time my son uses it. He uses it as a place to put up his electric train set."

Quarry is the 'last of the great white hopes' says Ali

By JACK STEVENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali termed his foe of next week, Jerry Quarry, as "the last of the great white hopes" yet the former champion appeared a little fat when he worked out in Los Angeles.

"Like those men in the rocket ships, they count out 10, 9, 8 until they get to zero," Ali commented in explaining his condition. "They wouldn't really be ready at the count of four."

Ali meets Jerry in a 12-round fight at Las Vegas on June 27 on the same card when brother Mike Quarry challenges light heavyweight champion Bob Foster for his 175-pound crown.

Ex-heavyweight king Ali, looking forward to a return match against the only man to beat him, heavyweight king Joe Frazier, says, "Quarry is a counter puncher, can hit and is fast. I won our first fight when he suffered a cut, where he wasn't cut before, and that might not happen again."

"So I'm risking everything in fighting him."

Yet Ali trained down to 217½ pounds for his winning 12-round

Court decision may cause strike

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

For the third time in 50 years, the U.S. Supreme Court has refused to overturn baseball's unique status as the only sport exempt from antitrust laws.

The highest court in the land thus threw the matter back at a seemingly disinterested Congress, which has adopted none of the more than 50 bills introduced in the last two decades to change baseball's reserve system which binds a player to one team indefinitely.

In a 5-3 ruling Monday against a suit brought by former outfielder Curt Flood, the court's refusal to redefine the reserve clause raised the possibility of another and more massive general strike next spring than the one which delayed the start of the 1972 baseball season for more than a week.

"Technically, it is a subject for collective bargaining," said Richard Moss, counsel for the Major League Baseball Players Association. "But practically, it is the subject for a strike, a long strike. You either forget it or strike over it, and both are unfortunate courses."

The so-called basic agreement between players and owners expires Dec. 31, along with pension and health insurance agreements reached after the recent strike in April. The basic agreement covers minimum salary, expenses and many other rules.

A good showing against the Baltimore Orioles' farm club could vault the former 31-game winner for the Detroit Tigers back into the major leagues.

"He probably needs another good outing to be called to Oakland," said Birmingham Manager Phil Cavarretta Monday night after the teams' first game of a five-game series was rained out.

"But I can't say he will be called up," cautioned Cavarretta. "The only thing I do is make out a report on each game and tell them (Oakland) what I see. But Denny showed me a good, live fast ball as far as velocity and movement are concerned in his last two times out."

McLain's third victory in five decisions with Birmingham came last Thursday when he went nine innings and beat Jacksonville 4-3. He gave up only six hits and retired the last 18 batters in a row.

McLain was sent to Birmingham by Oakland three weeks ago to work himself into shape and strengthen his arm.

season." Exactly what the players want was expalined by Milt Pappas, player representative of the Chicago Cubs: "The ruling doesn't make a lot of difference and the players were not looking to make utter chaos, which complete elimination of the reserve clause would do. However, some owners now have an idea how the players feel."

"What we are going to seek at the meeting table is an agreement that will give veteran players some freedom in negotiating. After a certain time with a club, say five years or eight years, a player should be able to sit down and negotiate on whether he can get more money if he's worth it, or be free to bargain with another club."

In its decision, the court agreed that baseball is a business engaged in interstate commerce and Justice Blackmun called its antitrust exemption "an aberration" and "an exception and an anomaly." He continued: "If there is any inconsistency or illogic in all of this, it is an inconsistency and illogic of long standing that is to be remedied by the Congress and not by this court."

Cosell showers verbal blows on athletics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sports commentator Howard Cosell rained verbal blows on some of his favorite athletic villains Monday and urged Congress to create a commission to regulate what he said are the excesses of professional sports.

McLain takes mound tonight

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Denny McLain will have an added incentive tonight when he takes the mound for Birmingham in the first game of a Southern League doubleheader against Asheville.

A good showing against the Baltimore Orioles' farm club could vault the former 31-game winner for the Detroit Tigers back into the major leagues.

"He probably needs another good outing to be called to Oakland," said Birmingham Manager Phil Cavarretta Monday night after the teams' first game of a five-game series was rained out.

"But I can't say he will be called up," cautioned Cavarretta. "The only thing I do is make out a report on each game and tell them (Oakland) what I see. But Denny showed me a good, live fast ball as far as velocity and movement are concerned in his last two times out."

gress to create a commission to regulate what he said are the excesses of professional sports.

"There is a curious legend that every athlete is a shining manhood, that every contest is inherently pure and that every owner a dedicated and selfless man concerned only with the good of the sport," said Cosell, a reporter and commentator for the ABC network.

And he told a Senate subcommittee sports writers have added to the legend and have helped make professional sports "a privileged sanctuary from life—a looking glass world—a Camelot."

It's no Camelot, said Cosell, as he proceeded to complain about sports monopolies, football games which only a privileged few can attend, TV blackouts of major local games and switches of baseball and football franchises motivated only by profit.

He put much of the blame on the owners and declared, "I do not buy their plea that they should be allowed to clean their own houses."

"They've evidenced a massive lack of desire to do so in all the years I've been on the sports scene."

He generally supported creating a national sports commission and told Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., the subcommittee chairman, that it should have the power to suspend or cancel team franchises for serious violations of regulations.

Another witness, Jack Dolph, commissioner of the American Basketball Association, testified the current bidding war is destroying professional basketball and disrupting college basketball.

He said the bill creating the sports commission is a long-range proposition that will not lend itself to stemming the bidding war of easing the financial problems it has caused.

Canadian football is a game with a difference

NEW YORK (AP) — What does Canadian professional football have that the National Football League doesn't? It's got a field that's 10 yards longer and 12 yards wider.

It's got 12 players to a team instead of 11.

It's got three running backs instead of two in the backfield.

It's got a rule that permits the running backs to go in motion in any direction before the snap of the ball.

It's got a rouge, a point scored by the punting team whenever the ball is kicked into the end zone and not run out.

It's got Alex Karras and Jerry Kramer.

Karras and Kramer are the latest stars of Canadian football. No—the two former National Football League linemen are not returning to action. But they will be telling everyone about Canadian football and the rouge on a 110-station television hook-up that will begin telecasting Canadian League games to the American market beginning July 3.

The television series is not the first in which Canadian football has tried to make headway in the American market, but there are several former "big name" products of U.S. college football in Canada, including former Notre Dame quarterback Joe Theismann and lineman Granville Liggins of Oklahoma and Jim Stillwagon of Ohio State.

There's also Kramer, who authored "Instant Replay", an instant best seller revolving around his days under Coach Vince Lombardi at Green Bay, and Karras, an outspoken former member of the Detroit Lions.

Howard Cosell may have to look to his laurels.

but it may be the most concerted effort.

What is being pushed, according to press releases, "is the 'go-for-the-bomb' action built into professional football in Canada", which is supposed to be a natural by-product of having only three downs in which to make 10 yards.

What has always worked against the Canadian brand of football is the lack of identity for American fans. It is extremely difficult for Americans to cheer for the Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Johnny Bench leads voting for All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench, the major league home run leader, has taken the lead for the catcher's spot in the National League voting for baseball's All-Star Game at Atlanta July 25.

The star of the Cincinnati Reds took over the No. 1 spot from Pittsburgh's catcher, Manny Sanguillen, in last week's balloting announced Monday by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench had a total of 130,823 votes to 88,868 for Sanguillen. The only other change came with Willie Mays of the New York Mets climbing to third place among the outfielders behind Hank Aaron of Atlanta and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh. Aaron leads with 153,400 votes. Clemente has 128,309 and Mays 107,178.

Third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis, first baseman Lee May of Houston, second baseman Glenn Beckert of the Chicago Cubs and shortstop Bud Harrelson of the Mets continue to top the voting for their positions. Torre had the most votes of any, 154,172.

Pirates blast Dodgers, Astros defeat Mets 3-0

By ALEX SACHARE Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates blasted their way out of a rut Monday night, but the Houston Astros have found a groove they'd like to stay in.

The Pirates, shut out by San Diego 4-0 and 1-0 in their last two starts and scoreless for 23 innings, erupted for 16 hits—including home runs by Roberto Clemente, Gene Alley and Al

Oliver—and pisted the Los Angeles Dodgers 13-3.

The Astros, meanwhile, got their second consecutive one-hit pitching performance when Larry Dierker limited New York to a lone single as Houston defeated the Mets 3-0 for the Astros' fifth straight victory.

As a result, Pittsburgh moved back into first place in the National League East by one-half game over the Mets, while the Astros pulled within a half-game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. The Reds were blanked by Montreal 2-0.

In the only other National League baseball action, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta and San Diego's contest at St. Louis were rained out.

In the American League, Boston bombed Texas 12-0, California edged Baltimore 4-3 and Oakland beat Detroit 7-3. Cleveland's game at Minnesota was rained out, while the New York Yankees, Milwaukee, Kansas City and Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

Oliver and Clemente drove in three runs apiece for the Pirates, whose .284 team batting average is tops in the majors. The three RBI moved Clemente into first place on the all-time Pirate list with 1,275, two more than Hall of Famer Pie Traynor.

Pittsburgh ended its scoreless streak with two runs in the first inning off Don Stutton, 8-2, with both losses coming at the hands of the Pirates. The Bucs added three more runs in the fifth, one in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the eighth.

"It really didn't matter who was pitching out there tonight," declared Oliver. "This team is loaded with talent, confidence and pride, and it just wanted to show the people something."

Meanwhile, at the Astrodome, Dierker showed the Houston fans something, too, duplicating Jerry Reuss' one-hit effort against the Phillies Sunday. It was only the eighth time back-to-back one-hitters have been pitched.

The lone safety off Dierker, 6-4, was a third inning single by Duffy Dyer.

Houston scored twice in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms, then added another run in the ninth on another RBI single by May.

Montreal's Bill Stoneman shut out the Cincinnati Reds on four singles, while Tim Foli and Ron Woods drove in the Expos' runs with sacrifice flies.

The Cubs posted their sixth straight victory and moved within 2½ games of the lead in the NL East when Glenn Beckert doubled home Don Kessinger in the 11th inning. Jim Hickman and Ron Santo had two-run homers for the Cubs while Garry Maddox hit a three-run blast for the Giants.

Reggie Smith clouted two home runs and drove in five runs and Sonny Siebert hurled a three-hitter as Boston whipped Texas. Siebert, 7-3, had a no-hitter until Ted Kubiak hit a pinch-double leading off the sixth inning. Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater also homered for Boston.

The Angels overtook the Orioles with three runs in the sixth inning on a two-run triple by Lee Stanton and an RBI single by Leo Cardenas. Bobby Grich hit a two-run homer for Baltimore while Ken McMullen homered for California.

Before and after

He died in Vietnam, but 'he didn't have to be here'

ON ROUTE 13, Vietnam (AP) — He ran straight into an exploding rocket. At his heels was a gray mongrel dog, his constant companion in many battles. It died with him.

"He was right up front to get the attack going," said the officer who replaced him on the spot. "He didn't have to be right up here, but that's the kind of man Col. Willey was. His courage and sheer presence made all the difference."

Lt. Col. Burr M. Willey, 44, from Ayer, Mass., was one of a handful of Americans still seeing front-line action in Vietnam. He was part of the small team of advisers to the South Vietnamese 21st Infantry Division which has been fighting for two months to raise the siege of An Loc.

About noon Monday it seemed that the final push was near. Willey and other advisers persuaded the Vietnamese to use their tanks and rangers in an attempt to end the month-long deadlock.

As the heavy vehicles lumbered northwards past his command bunker at Chon Thanh, Willey shouted gleefully, "At last they're moving."

He jammed on his steel helmet, tugged on his flak vest, climbed into his jeep and said, "I'll be back in half an hour."

Two hours later a helicopter was to fly him to Saigon for a week's respite from the battle-front.

As his jeep began to move off, he called out, "Come on, Moose." Out of the bunker dashed a streak of dirty gray fur. It jumped between the radios in the back seat, and the jeep raced off.

"I inherited Moose in the Delta," Willey had said half an hour earlier. "And he has never gone from my side. He insists on riding the helicopters with me. We even made the newspapers together," he laughed, showing a clipping.

It was an Associated Press

Wirephoto showing Willey shooting his rifle, his barking dog behind him. The picture was taken on May 13, a few yards from where they were to die together.

Willey bypassed the tanks strung along Route 13 and swung off the road near a forward position called the Anthill. Bending low to avoid snipers, he ran forward to join a battalion adviser, Maj. Thyrone Henderson of Lexington, Ky., in his foxhole.

"We heard the first rocket round come in behind us and looked back," Henderson recalled. "It hit near the Vietnamese command group. Wiley started back to see if anyone had been hurt and to take over if needed.

"I was five or ten yards behind. There was a terrific explosion just in front of him. I heard the dog yelp in pain. When the dust settled, Col. Willey was lying on the ground and I knew it was instant death. The dog tumbled into a bomb crater."

While Henderson wrapped the dead colonel in a poncho, the rockets continued to fall. Within minutes, nine Vietnamese were dead and two were wounded. The drive collapsed, and the tanks and rangers pulled back. Willey's friend and superior officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin, who had been at the side of the road, loaded the body on the hood of his jeep. Grim-faced, he raced southward, headlights flashing.

An American medical evacuation helicopter met them two miles down the road. Franklin grabbed one side of a shrapnel-shredded stretcher and loaded his dead officer aboard.

Eight wounded Vietnamese crawled aboard, and some sprawled across the colonel's litter.

"This was his third Vietnam tour," Franklin said as the helicopter lifted off. "He was an old soldier just doing his job."

Willey was a hard-driving man who had no illusions about the risks of his job or about the Vietnamese. In the past two months he had seen Americans who had worked with him killed or shipped home wounded.

He was full of sympathy for the Vietnamese soldiers fighting an endless war. But he did not hide his resentment of some of the Vietnamese officers who were reluctant to lead the fight. At the moment of his death, Willey's Vietnamese counterpart was following the operation from a hammock strung between the sandbagged walls of his command bunker three miles to the rear.

Sgt. Maj. Jim L. Ellis, from

Crowell, Mich., fought back the tears as he packed Willey's few personal things. He had shared a forward bunker with the colonel since April 25 and had himself survived some close ones, including a direct hit on the bunker.

He pulled out a ledger from underneath a cot and ran his finger down the list of 15 advisers who had been on the regimental team. Some had died, some had been wounded as many as four times.

Ellis took a pen and crossed out one of the entries: "Burr M. Willey, Lt. Col., U.S. Army, branch infantry, arrived April 25." He wrote in the last column, "K.I.A., June 19, 1972."

Concern for U.S.'s environment must slacken: F. Ikard

DENVER (AP) — Americans must temper their concern for the environment with realization that they face "an energy supply crisis of acute dimensions," an oil industry spokesman told Democratic party policymakers today.

President Frank N. Ikard of the American Petroleum Institute testified at a Democratic platform committee panel hearing that the petroleum industry wishes oil and gas "could be found in more convenient places." But he went on:

"Unfortunately, drilling for these resources must go on in areas where the geology indicates they might be found, whether onshore or in deep water."

Ikard's prepared statement was submitted to a 15-member panel of the platform committee at an all-day meeting in the Denver Hilton hotel. It was one of a dozen testimony-taking sessions around the country.

The API executive, who spoke also for the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, the Rocky Mountain Oil and Gas Association, and the Western Oil and Gas Association, was one of more than 40 witnesses scheduled to testify. Final writing of the platform will begin Friday in Washington by the full 150-member platform committee.

Offshore drilling, a prime target of conservationists because of its threat of oil contamination of the coasts, and other oil operations in sensitive areas might be postponed if it were not for the worsening energy crisis, Ikard said. He added:

"But the petroleum industry has a twofold responsibility and it must recognize both of them. We are compelled by the necessity of the times to balance protection of the environment with the corresponding need to meet the energy requirements of the American people."

The county has adequate oil and natural gas reserves to meet the crisis, he said, but needs a climate for earnings that will attract into the high-risk industry the almost $300 billion of capital required to develop new fields.

Ikard criticized as "unrealistic" the ceiling price of natural gas at the wellhead imposed by federal controls, in view of proposals to pay about twice as much for "unreliable supplies" of liquefied natural gas imported from Algeria, Russia and elsewhere.

The Denver session was among the last of the Democrats' roadshow platform hearings. Another will be held Thursday in New York, on the Vietnam war and other problems of war and peace.

No sure thing for McGovern, Mills says

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — A victory in today's presidential primary in New York would not sew up the Democratic presidential nomination for Sen. George McGovern, says Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

Mills, in McGovern's home state to aid the Senate campaign of a South Dakota congressman and visit flood-ravaged Rapid City, said in an interview Monday in a New York victory would put McGovern "very close" to the nomination, but he added, "Those last 100 or 200 delegates can be the hardest to get."

Mills said he was still in the running for the presidential nomination himself, but added, "I'm not kidding myself that it's a likely possibility. I know that the convention would first have to be deadlocked."

The Arkansas congressman was in South Dakota at the request of Rep. James Abourezk, who is a Democratic candidate for the Senate.

Mills stopped in Sioux Falls, where he and Abourezk attended a hearing on the problems of South Dakota's elderly, and then flew to Rapid City, where a flood June 9 left 216 known dead and thousands homeless.

In a news conference there, Mills said he thought Congress could help the victims of the flood disaster but "the legislative process is often slow and unpredictable."

He warned Rapid City residents not to raise their hopes too high.

Athletes threaten boycott

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two American record-holders in women's track events said Monday they would boycott their Olympic training camp if the site was not moved from Champaign, Ill.

Discus thrower Olga Connolly and long jumper Martha Watson said they wrote a letter to Amateur Athletic Union President Jack Kelly and sent a copy to Nell Jackson, women's Olympic team coach who lives in Champaign, home of the University of Illinois.

"We shouldn't have to compete where it's hot, humid and always raining," said Miss Watson. She said her letter was also signed by nine other Olympic qualified girls.

Miss Watson, from Long Beach, Calif., made her statement at the meeting of the Southern California Track Writers Association.

"There is usually so much wind that people have to hold the high jump cross bars. It seems that Miss Jackson would like to have the camp close by so that she doesn't get docked any pay. I'm going to lose money by going to this camp."

Mrs. Connolly said, "I stayed out of the sport for three years and when I start throwing again, I meet the same terrible situation. The officials are either incompetent or don't have the intellectual capacity to know how bad a training site that place would be."

Mrs. Connolly won the discus in 1956 for Czechoslovakia in the Olympic Games and then married Hal Connolly, who won the hammer throw in those games for the United States. She has competed in past years for the USA in the Olympics, and holds the American record at 185 feet 3 inches.

Miss Watson, states the American long jump record with Willye White of Chicago at 21-6.

Paper wins in fight for info

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Oklahoma City newspaper has won a victory in its fight to gain access to Army records of units involved in the My Lai massacre in Vietnam.

The Army's decision to release previously withheld record on My Lai came in response to an appeal by the Daily Oklahoman and was hailed by two freedoms of information organizations as a breakthrough on behalf of the public's free access to government information.

The Army, in a reversal which may have a wide-ranging effect on future Army classification and censorship, ordered the full morning reports of three infantry companies and an aviation company involved in My Lai released to the Daily Oklahoman.

The Daily Oklahoman had appealed the censorship concerning the 1968 My Lai incident, which involved 401 separate items ranging from killed in action to AWOLs. The May 12 appeal was based on the Freedom of Information Act and the Army's own regulations.

Robert W. Berry, the Army's general counsel, informed the newspaper that the morning reports would be relayed "without deletions."

But Berry, in a letter dated Friday, denied the second part of the Oklahoman's appeal for release of the Army's investigation into My Lai, commonly called the Peers Report after Lt. Gen. William R. Peers.

The Army said it was justified in withholding the Peers Report on the grounds it is an interoffice memo, an investigative report compiled for law enforcement purposes, and that disclosure would be invasion of personal privacy and would jeopardize a fair and impartial disposition of the appeal of Lt. William L. Calley.

The Oklahoman had sought access to the morning reports since Dec. 1, 1969, and the decision may lead to release of additional records also requested by the paper.

Those records are Tactical Operations Center Logs for the Task Force, a brigade and division which conducted the My Lai operation.

Cepeda is reinstated

ATLANTA (AP) — Orlando Cepeda is happy again and the Atlanta Braves are pleased to have their slugging first baseman back.

So ends a trying weekend for the 34-year-old Cepeda, a former National League Most Valuable Player, who walked out on the Braves before Saturday's Montreal game and was promptly suspended without pay by Manager Luan Harris.

Beamon wants to play pro basketball

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Beamon, who won a gold medal at the Olympics four years ago by long jumping more than a foot further than anyone else in history, says he won't be making an encore appearance at the 1972 games in Munich.

Instead, the 25-year-old world record holder says, he is retiring from competitive track and field and wants to play professional basketball.

"I'm going to retire and just watch the Olympics this year," Beamon said Monday at a luncheon gathering of the San Diego Sportswriters-Sportscasters Association.

"I just feel like I had some goals in track and I reached them," he said.

Patient can still lead full life

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Would you please explain the outcome for a man 54 years of age, weighing 145 who has arteriosclerotic heart disease and some blockage of one of the arteries to his heart. Now he is home and has had bed rest for two weeks and is up and can walk and can exercise. After he is completely released, how much work will he be able to do. He was a moderate cigarette smoker but on advice from his doctor he has stopped. What diet will he need? He likes fried foods and can eat them if they are cooked in vegetable oil and drained. Is there a chance of the closure in his arteries diminishing even to a small extent if he takes care of himself?

Dear Reader—One of the most important medical problems we have is rehabilitating a person who has arteriosclerotic heart disease or who has had a recent heart attack. After all, heart attacks are responsible for one out of four deaths from all causes in the United States.

Every case has to be handled individually. It is not possible to know how much damage a person may have had during a heart attack until after he has started to show recovery and can get up and walk around. Only when the heart is used more can the doctor tell if it is going to be strong enough for the person to lead a relatively normal life.

About all I can give you are some guidelines. As long as a person isn't having chest pain or discomfort or isn't excessively fatigued, the best exercise is to walk. The amount of walking should be gradually increased. No one who has had a heart attack should be doing any more vigorous exercise than walking for about three months after the initial attack occurred. This time is needed to open the small arteries in the heart to provide detours for blood supply around the artery which has been blocked.

Under careful medical supervision, some patients who have recovered well from their heart attack can do a little more vigorous physical activity sooner, but only with the doctor's advice. I have seen many men gradually build up their exercise tolerance to the same level or better than it was before their attack occurred.

Stopping cigarette smoking is a must. I also recommend stopping coffee and all stimulating drugs. During the first three months, activities should be limited to a level that the heart rate doesn't exceed 100 beats per minute. Coffee, stimulating drinks and cigarettes all contribute to rapid heart rate.

The important thing in the diet is to reduce the calorie intake enough to eliminate any excess body fat.

Party reshaping is goal of plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern hopes to win 200 more delegates over scattered opposition today in a New York primary that could give him nearly half the remaining votes he needs to capture the Democratic presidential nomination.

With 41 of his delegates unopposed and many others facing only token opposition, including some organization rivals that would back him also, McGovern appeared certain to win a substantial majority of the 248 delegates being elected in the last of 23 presidential primaries.

The South Dakota senator said it would be a setback if he won less than 200 of New York's total of 278 delegates. The last 30 will be allocated by the Democratic state committee in the same proportion as the elected delegates.

With only a handful of other delegates yet to be selected in other states, McGovern's first-ballot strength stands at 1,072.3 votes—436.7 short of the 1,509 needed to capture the nomination.

The names of presidential candidates don't appear on the ballot in New York, where voters in each of 39 congressional districts will pick delegates and alternates. They'll have to know before they go in the booth which delegates favor which candidate.

Republicans are picking 78 of their 88 delegates, with supporters of President Nixon expected to win most of them.

Besides the presidential delegate races, a number of hot congressional races are being decided. In two New York City districts, liberal incumbents have been thrown together by reapportionment. Reps. William F. Ryan and Bella Abzug in a mainly Manhattan district and Reps. Jonathan Bingham and James Scheuer in the Bronx.

In Maine, on Monday, 74-year-old Sen. Margaret Chase Smith survived her first Republican primary challenge in 18 years by defeating millionaire businessman Robert A.G. Monks, 39. She faces a stiff battle in November against Rep. William Hathaway, who easily won the Democratic nomination.

McGovern has spent most of the past week in New York, campaigning hard to prevent any loss of momentum after his June 6 victory in California that gave him that state's 271 delegates.

His supporters are running for 237 of the 248 delegate spots in all of New York's 39 congressional districts but two, one represented by Rep. Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, a black who is also a presidential candidate, and the one of Rep. Herman Badillo of the Bronx, the only Puerto Rican congressman.

Full crew squabble renewing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The squabble over the state's full-crew freight train law appears to be renewing, but the arguments are the same as they have been in the past.

Clovis Bryant, state director of the United Transportation Union said Monday that even though shippers now have a clause that no railroad employee with seniority would be laid-off or have his wages reduced, the repeal of the law could mean loss of 500 jobs to Arkansas workers.

Bryant said that the additional section in this year's petition does not provide "adequate protection" for the railroad employees.

The section says no railroad employee with seniority in train engine or yard service on the effective date of the repealing would be "discharged, laid off, furloughed or suffer a reduction in earning by reason of the act."

A spokesman for Arkansas shippers said Secretary of State Kelly Bryant will be presented a petition Wednesday to get an initiated act placed on the ballot to repeal the law.

The law requires freight trains with 25 or more cars to have a crew of six men. The shippers maintain that that many men are not needed.

If the initiated act is placed on the ballot it will be the fifth such act presented to Arkansas voters.

"We felt that the people spoke long and loud in 1970 saying they want to retain this law," Bryant said.

Laird tapped for committee witness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who has offered only conditional support of the Moscow arms accords, appears before the Senate Armed Services Committee today to discuss military aspects of the agreements.

Laird has declared publicly that he could not support the U.S.-Soviet pact limiting offensive and defensive nuclear missiles without continued U.S. development of new submarine and bomber systems.

"The success of SALT depends on sustained strength," Laird had said in remarks which differ, in emphasis at least, from the positions outlined by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger has maintained that the administration is interested equally in congressional approval of both the arms accords and funds for continued development of weapons exempt from the agreements. But he has said, "We are not making them conditional."

The new weapons programs came under fire Monday from Senate Foreign Relations Committee members who questioned Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said that shifting the arms race to exempt weapons would be "inconsistent" with the spirit of the agreements.

Rogers said the United States wants to reach additional arms agreements in continuing talks with the Soviets, but asserted that "we have to do it from a position of strength."

After all, he said, Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has declared that Russia will move ahead on weapons improvements.

Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chief U.S. negotiator of the SALT agreements, said the Russians want to improve the efficiency of their missiles, among other things converting to solid fuel.

Rogers assured the Foreign Relations Committee that the United States was put at "no disadvantage at all" in the eleven-hour decisions made by President Nixon before signing the agreements in Moscow last month.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-

Mo., joined Fulbright in criticizing new weapons programs, asserting that national security depends also on a viable economy.

But Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., called an unbalanced military posture "more frightening than an unbalanced budget," and said he would give the weapons proposals the benefit of the doubt.

Fulbright declared his opposition to construction of an anti-ballistic-missile site near Washington, and asked whether the Soviets might agree in future negotiations to abandon ABMs entirely.

The two-site treaty, Rogers said, "provides what we can reasonably expect."

Demands made to eliminate gasoline lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-nine members of Congress demanded today that all lead be removed from gasoline by 1977. They contended that soil poisoned by car exhaust is already a health hazard in most major cities.

"In view of the facts," said Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., in a letter to the Environmental Protection Agency, "it is not melodramatic to suggest that our choice is between higher gasoline prices and mentally retarded children."

William E. Henderson, director of the Parks Department said that formal approval was received Monday from both agencies.

The folk center will have an auditorium, which will seat more than 1,000 persons, and it will also house arts and crafts shops.
